

The image shows the front cover of an antique book. The cover is made of a light-colored, vertically-ribbed material, possibly vellum or parchment, which is heavily worn and discolored. A decorative border of hand-painted flowers and foliage in blue, green, and ochre colors surrounds the central area. A large, irregularly shaped piece of aged, reddish-orange paper is pasted onto the cover, serving as a title label. The text on the label is written in a dark ink in a cursive script. The left edge of the book shows the spine, which is bound in dark brown leather.
